

South African Krugerrand

1 Oz. Gold Bullion Coin

First Modern Gold Bullion Coin in International Market

The 1 oz. Gold South African Krugerrand was the first of gold bullion coin to enter the world market when it was first minted in 1967. Even now, the Krugerrand is among the top three gold bullion coins in the world for investment.

The Krugerrand pays homage to the history of South Africa. The obverse design is a portrait image of Paul Kruger, who served four terms as president of the South African Republic. A Boer statesman, Kruger was a leader in helping South Africa gain independence from British rule. This design was created by Otto Schultz. Also on the obverse are the English and Afrikaans spellings of South Africa and Sud-Afrika.

The reverse of the coin features a springbok, which is an antelope native to southern and southwestern Africa. The springbok has long been a national symbol of South Africa. The springbok image for the Krugerrand reverse was designed by Coert Steynberg and originally used on the South African five shilling coin. The reverse shows the word "Krugerrand" above the springbok, the year to the sides of the animal, and the weight and purity of "Fyngoud 1 oz. Fine Gold" below.

The Krugerrand is minted in 22-karat gold, which has a purity of .9167. Although fractional coins have been available since 1980 and very large Krugerrands have also been produced, the 1 oz. weight is by far the most popular and easiest to trade. People who have been buying gold for many years are well-acquainted with this magnificent gold bullion coin. Even new investors are generally aware of the benefits of investing in gold South African Krugerrands.

1 Oz. Gold South African Krugerrand

The 1 oz. Krugerrand was first modern gold bullion coin to reach millions of investors around the world. This 22-karat coin is still one of the most popular coins on the global market.

The Krugerrand coin has fluctuated in popularity and supply over the years. Many Western countries made the Krugerrand an illegal import during the 1970s and 1980s, although it continued to be a popular gold bullion investment coin. In fact, by 1980, it made up 90% of the world market for gold bullion coins, with 22 million gold Krugerrand coins imported to the U.S. between 1974 and 1985. A total of more than 50 million gold coins, including fractional coins, have been released since their first appearance on the market.
