

2016 Chinese Gold Panda Coin

30 Gram Gold Bullion Coin

Brilliant Choice

The Chinese Mint has been producing its official gold bullion coin for over 30 years, and it is one of the most popular coins for investors. The appeal of the 2016 30 gram Chinese gold Panda lies partly in its limited production. The Chinese government allows only 600,000 of them to be minted for the global market. A limited release such as this contributes to the value of the coin, which is likely to increase in price dramatically over the years.

The People's Republic of China has created a fascinating and beautiful design for the 30 gram Chinese gold Panda coin. The coin gets its name from the design on the reverse, which shows a giant panda resting on a downed tree limb on his way to the end of the branch. In the background is a bamboo wall. This design has been updated in 2016 with a brand new panda image. Below the panda are the face value, weight, purity and metal content.

The obverse displays an iconic Chinese image – the Temple of Heaven. This is an actual temple in Beijing that has been standing for thousands of years. The reverse also bears the date of the coin, in this case, 2016.

When light hits the reverse of the 2016 2 oz. bullion coin, the giant panda sparkles. The legs of the panda catch the light, while the panda's body shows up as if it is a deeper shade of gold. GMRgold offers this coin in Brilliant Uncirculated condition, adding to its visual appeal, as well as its value for collectors.

If you are looking for a gold bullion coin with a supply and demand balance that is beneficial to investors, you cannot go wrong with a Chinese Gold Panda coin.

The Chinese Gold Panda coin is one of the most beautiful and unusual options in gold bullion around the world. For Americans, there is an aura of mystery surrounding China and the Chinese Mint that produces the Gold Panda coins. It has facilities in Beijing, Shanghai, Shenzhen, and Shenyang, but no mit mark is displayed on the coin.

In 2016, the weight of the 500 Yuan Gold Panda coin has changed for the first time, now reading 30 grams, which is nearly 1 Troy ounce. Fractional gold coins and silver coins are also available in the Gold Panda series.

The 1 oz. Chinese Gold Panda coin went into production beginning in 1982. Since then, the panda design has changed for each year, with only one exception. Bullion buyers who are also interested in numismatic features are drawn to this coin because of the potential for short-term sales and long-term gains.

YOUR INVESTMENT OPTIONS

- 1. Consider diversifying your portfolio with beautiful Chinese Gold Panda Coins. Their relative rarity gives a numismatic quality to this intrinsically valuable gold bullion coin.
- 2. If you are an experienced investor, you are sure to appreciate the quality and design of this coin, as well as its potential for both short-term and long-term gains.
