

Austrian 100 Corona - Common Date

A High Quality Gold Investment Coin

100 Austrian Corona Gold Gold

The original Austrian 100 Corona Gold coins, only issued by the Austrian Mint from 1908 to 1915, replaced the Gulden. First issued during the diamond jubilee of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, the gold corona became Austria's first gold currency. In recent years, these coins have been re-struck for collectors and investors throughout the world.

The obverse image is the bust of Austrian Emperor and Hungarian King Franz Josef I. The coin's reverse image is a crowned imperial double-headed eagle superimposed with the Austrian coat of arms. The reverse is also stamped with its name and 1915 in Roman numerals to indicate its last mint year as a currency coin, along with its current year and its denomination of 100 Cor.

The 100 Corona gold coin is quite popular worldwide with both investors and collectors who prefer gold coins to bars or want to keep a diversified portfolio. At nearly a full troy ounce of gold, the 100 Corona gold coin is a great investment buy with low premiums over spot price compared to many other gold coins.

These particular 100 Corona gold coins are in Brilliant Uncirculated condition. They were graded and packaged without ever having been in circulation. Any of the Austrian 100 Corona gold coins in our reserve of common coins may be sent to you when you make your order of 100 Corona gold coin random year. Outstanding products of the reputable Austrian Mint, the 100 Corona coins are an excellent addition to any gold collection and a stable investment for years to come.

Once the basis of Austria's gold currency, the 100 Corona gold coin is now being produced by the Austrian mint solely for investors and collectors. It is an attractive coin with high investment value.

Although the 100 Corona coin is not as confined to the intrinsic value of its metal as gold bars, it is still a secure investment in gold. The high gold content of the large Austrian 100 Corona gold coin makes it a perfect choice for increasing your gold holdings with a disciplined approach to gold buying.

Many gold collectors appreciate the numismatic features of the 100 Corona gold coin, but its primary appeal is to gold investors. This nearly 1-oz. coin is valuable now and almost certain to increase in value for many years to come.
